

The ENHAGA Game's plugins

For the ENHAGA game, two plugins were developed to help game developers to add anti-harassment functionalities to their online games: the ENHAGA chat and the ENHAGA text filter!

The ENHAGA Chat is a text chat system that utilizes Matrix, an open standard for interoperable, decentralized, real-time communication. It is an open-source alternative to centralized communication platforms such as Messenger and Viber, where users do not have to connect to a centralized server for their communication, but they can create and run their own server called a homeserver.

Although various applications for filtering text are widely available, it is often difficult and time consuming to integrate them into online games. The ENHAGA text filter plugin is a web-based, easy-to-use tool that runs alongside the game and filters inappropriate text. It provides profanity censorship and toxic text prediction. It can be used as a standalone application that game developers can run together with the game and use it to filter text coming from their user.

Aims of the project:

- Preventing and combating psychological online harassment especially for girls and young female gamers
- Promoting capacity-building for relevant professionals in the gaming sector
- Making provisions for gamers from diverse backgrounds by helping to spread knowledge about the need to combat violence based on gender
- Equipping relevant stakeholders with awareness, tools and empowerment in order to report cyber harassment and build cross-gender ecosystems of tolerance and respect
